Features

Today's Research landscape requires researchers, research managers and institutions to continually develop more effective ways to inform research strategy and evaluate research activities.
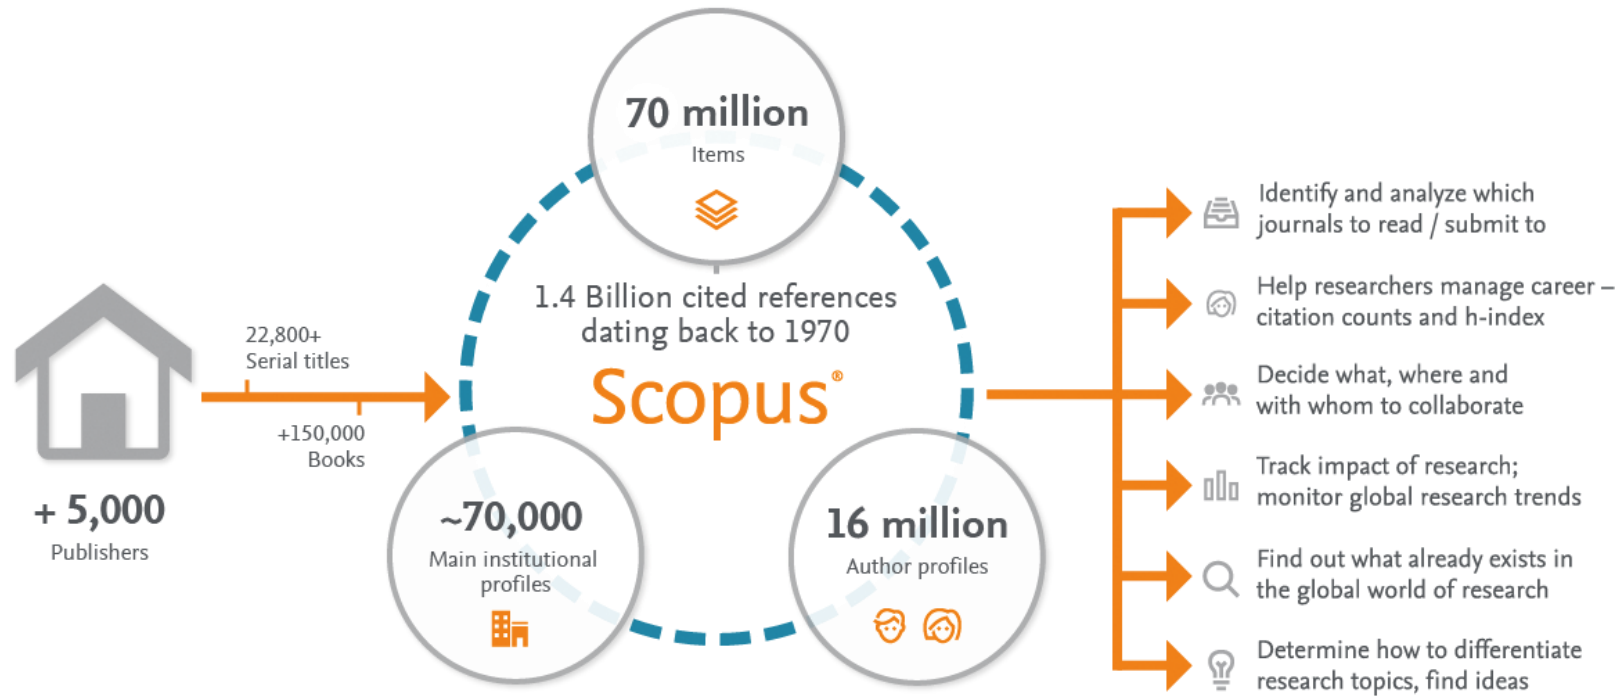

SciVal
- can process large amounts of data to generate powerful analyses and visualisations on demand
- enables you to evaluate your own as well as your peers research activities from a variety of perspectives in order to help you develop, execute and evaluate strategies based on reliable evidence.
- allows you to instantly analyse over 50 million publication records from more than 22,000 journals of 5,000+ publishers worldwide. With access to more than 280 trillion metric values

SciVal is able to quickly provide context to analyses and to generate powerful data visualizations to inform your decision making processes.
